Profile

I am a Front-end web developer based in Casablanca. I have a degree in full-stack development and I have a strong passion for front-end web development. My coding journey began as a hobby, and I honed my skills through self-directed learning and personal projects. I master adaptive design, making sure websites fit perfectly to different devices and screen sizes. In addition, I excel in problem-solving, a skill I have honed in my current role, and I am committed to continuous learning.

Projects

Sport club

This project, which is part of my full-stack developer degree, is a complete sports club management system. It enables club administrators to efficiently manage activities and plans with CRUD operations. In addition, members can update their profiles easily.

URL shortener

The URL Shortener project, with its responsive design, simplifies URL shortening through an external API, generating more manageable links.

Portfolio

My portfolio site is a dynamic showcase of my career as a web developer. It is an ongoing project that reflects my skills, experiences and creativity.
